If there was one day in your life that you will find yourself smiling a lot it will be on your wedding day. If you are feeling self-conscious about the way your teeth look, it will prevent you from smiling and looking your best. The way your teeth look and feel affects your mood and body language. On your wedding day, you will be talking to a lot of people. You will be kissing a lot of people. You will also have a lot of pictures taken. You want to look your best. You want to feel your best. This is a gift you give yourself, not only on this day but for your lifetime.

Start your skincare regimen 6 months before the wedding. There are many different facial treatments available to make your skin glow on your special day. Exfoliation is the key to a youthful look- once a month facials are a must, which will exfoliate dead skin cells and create fresh new skin. Your last facial should be done 1 week prior to the big day. Microdermabrasion or chemical peels will do the best job in achieving glowing skin. To get your skin prepared for your make-up look, you need to set up a trial run so that you know exactly what you will look like on your wedding day. Make-up is a personal thing so be sure to express yourself clearly on what you are expecting. A good make-up artist will enhance all your best features and minimize flaws. You will also want to encourage your wedding party to get there make-up done so they will look there best in the photos. False eyelashes will also make a huge difference and enhance your eyes in the pictures which will last a lifetime.
